INTRODUCTION

This inventory describes the photographs which are part of the MacMillan Bloedel Limited Records. The records were received by the Special Collections Division of the University of British Columbia Library from MacMillan Bloedel Limited in June of 1988. The inventory is a printout version of the online MacMillan Bloedel Photographs Database available to anyone accessing UBC Net. The photographs are described under the name of the company that generated them, reflecting the origin of their collection. Thus, they are described as belonging to the six different companies that are now known as MacMillan Bloedel Limited: MacMillan Bloedel Limited, Powell River Company, Bloedel, Stewart & Welch, H.R. MacMillan Export, MacMillan & Bloedel and MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River. Descriptions are at the series and file level. Boldface headings are those used in the MacMillan Bloedel Limited Records Inventory to indicate to which subgroup and series the photographs belong. File headings are either the exact title of the business file they belong to (eg. G.E. Hermann's Outgoing Correspondence) or if there was no file heading, an indication of the content of the file. For full biographic and historical background on the various companies, officers and departments, researchers should consult the MacMillan Bloedel Limited Records Inventory. A name and subject index at the back of this inventory directs researchers to photograph descriptions and their file location. Researchers looking for shots of particular logging equipment such as A-frames, skidders, donkey engines, etc. should look under the subject heading "logging machinery". Similarly, those searching for photographs of edgers, barkers, jack ladders, etc. should look under, "lumbering machinery." Shots of trees can be found under the subject heading, "forests and forestry" as can shots of reforestation. Shots of logging, lumbering, the pulp industry, paper industry and plywood industry should be looked for under those subject headings. A photographer's name index is also provided. Further work remains to be done on name indexes to standardize the name entries. Researchers will find that company names and in some cases photographers' names appear in the indexes in several different forms. The index names were drawn from information in the photographs, inscribed or stamped on the back of the photographs or on the file folders.

HISTORICAL NOTE

MacMillan Bloedel Limited is an amalgamated body of British Columbia's three major forestry companies: H.R. MacMillan Export, Bloedel, Stewart & Welch and Powell River Company. It was established as MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River in 1960 and renamed MacMillan Bloedel in 1966. These three parent companies specialized in different areas of the forestry industry. The Powell River Company was established in 1909 by Brooks-Scanlon Inc. of Minneapolis to produce newsprint. Bloedel, Stewart & Welch, also American owned, began operations in 1911 primarily as a logging operation. H.R. MacMillan Export was incorporated in 1919 as a lumber exporting agency. The merger between H.R. MacMillan Export and Bloedel, Stewart & Welch in 1951 provided a great deal of choice land from Bloedel, Stewart & Welch and a strong administrative structure from H.R. MacMillan Export. In 1960, with the amalgamation with Powell River Company the new company acquired strong pulp and paper operations. In 1956, H.R. MacMillan resigned as chairman. J.V. Clyne succeeded him in January 1958. MacMillan remained, however, on the Finance and Policy Committee until 1968. After the merger with Powell River Company in 1960, Clyne carried on as chairman of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell, River, while H.S. Foley, formerly longtime chairman of the Powell River Company, became vice chairman. An incompatibility between H.S. Foley and Clyne led to Foley's resignation not long after. In 1962 McKinsey and Company, American management consultants, were hired by Clyne to evaluate management practices. McKinsey's recommendations resulted in the reorganization of the corporation from 57 units into four self-sufficient business sectors: Logging Group, Wood Products Group, Pulp and Paper Group and Packaging Group. Top management personnel were now able to direct their energies to issues such as longterm acquisition planning. In 1968 expansion moved beyond wood products and pulp and paper into allied industries, a direction which led to a crisis as the Canadian Transport Co., which been established by H.R. MacMillan Export in 1923, virtually collapsed in 1975 after a major buildup. As a result of the difficulties both the chairman, G.B. Currie, who had replaced Clyne in 1973, and the President and Chief Executive Officer, D.W. Timmis, were fired in 1976. Despite the temporary setback the corporation remained one of Canada's largest forestry companies.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The MacMillan Bloedel Limited Photographs consist of a wonderful collection of over 19,000 images which document the logging, lumbering and paper making operations of the company and its predecessors from 1861 to 1987 with the majority of the photographs dating in the mid 1900s. There are numerous shots of men and machinery in B.C.'s forests felling, sawing, skidding or hauling logs onto waiting trains and trucks. There are many historic images of steam donkeys, wooden A-frames and skyline skidders, locomotives and other obsolete forestry equipment. There are also shots of early logging camps, loggers and logging sites. There are a few images of seeding operations. There are views of exteriors of plants, mills and office buildings. There are also shots of interiors showing men and some women at work operating the saws, plywood, lumber, pulp and paper making machinery and packaging the products. The exterior shots show aerial, roof top and ground level views. Other images include studio portraits and group shots of corporate executives. Of particular interest will be the over 1,500 Jack Cash photographs, many of which are negatives which have never been seen, which depict logging and lumbering operations in B.C. in the 1940s and 1950s. Also of interest will be the photograph library, consisting of approximately 4,000 images categorized according to function and subject. Most of the photographs consist of black and white photoprints, though there are some phototransparencies and a few colour photoprints and slides. Apart from the Jack Cash photographs and the photograph library contained in the MacMillan Bloedel operations photographs series, there are few photonegatives. The photographs are contained in 77 Hollinger boxes. Boxes 1 to 35 are described down to the file level and indexed to the series or item level. Boxes 49 to 90 are accompanied by a finding aid in the form of index cards (boxes 91 to 93), originally used by the creator and describing the photographs down to the item level.

SENIOR EXECUTIVE CORPORATE PAPERS COLLECTION, 1906-1977E.G. Shorter Corporate Papers [restricted until June 22, 1998], 1959-1973

Shorter had a long career with MacMillan's companies beginning at Alberni Pacific Lumber during the 1940s, eventually becoming president of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River, 1961-1963. He became Vice Chairman, 1963-1969, when C.A. Specht was appointed President.

ADDITIONAL TOP MANAGEMENT, 1931-1981

Prentice Bloedel Corporate Papers, 1931-1967

Prentice Bloedel, son of J.H. Bloedel, President, joined Bloedel, Stewart & Welch as Secretary Treasurer in 1930. By approximately 1944 he was President and Treasurer. On merger with H.R. MacMillan Export he was appointed as Vice Chairman along with W.J. VanDusen, a position in which he claimed he had no particular function apart from serving on the Executive Committee. He remained on the Executive Committee past the time of merger with the Powell River Company in 1960, and did not leave the Board until 1972. This collection was donated by Prentice Bloedel in September 1980 at which time he evidently intended to donate additional material at a later date. This selection represents aspects of his research and technological development functions during his tenure with Bloedel, Stewart & Welch, as well as a small amount of material from later periods.

JACK CASH PHOTONEGATIVES (1946-1961).

This series consists of over 1500 photographs taken by professional photographer Jack Cash of North Vancouver. He was frequently engaged by H.R. MacMillan Export and MacMillan & Bloedel to take photographs used for publication in company newsletters and for promotion purposes. MacMillan Bloedel Limited eventually purchased these Jack Cash negatives, for which they already had some prints. These negatives, which have been combined with the existing prints, document corporate operations at Alberni Pacific Lumber, Alberni Plywoods, Bloedel, Stewart & Welch (Franklin River, Great Central Sawmill), Canadian White Pine Co., Iron River Logging, MacMillan Industries, Nanaimo Sulphate Pulp (later called Harmac Pulp Division), Northwest Bay Logging and Victoria Lumber, and also include H.R. MacMillan Sales publicity photographs, particularly pertaining to plywood promotion. This collection of negatives and photographs is an excellent source of visual material of the company's logging and lumbering operations in B.C. in the mid 1900's. The images consist of shots of loggers at work topping, felling and bucking trees and operating machinery to skid, haul and transport logs. There are images of steam donkeys, spar trees, skidders and a variety of other forestry shots. There are also aerial views, roof top and ground level shots of building exteriors, interiors with men and women at work, closeups and long shots of the various machinery used. There are seven boxes of photoprints, negatives and a few transparencies arranged in alphabetical order by division or subject. Many of the photographs are identified. Researchers should check the file listing which provides more detailed information on the subjects photographed.

In 1909 M.J. Scanlon and D.F. Brooks of Brooks-Scanlon in Minneapolis purchased land and property rights held by the Canadian Industrial Company and later that year Powell River Paper was incorporated for the purpose of newsprint manufacture. (The name was changed to Powell River Company in 1911.) Townsite and plant construction began in 1910. The period 1930-1948 was a time of considerable technical improvement as, for example, the first pulp and paper research laboratory in the province was established in 1937 and export of unbleached sulphite pulp began.

Bloedel, Stewart & Welch was incorporated in British Columbia in July 1911. J.H. Bloedel, a Washington state lumberman, was the driving force while railway contractors John W. Stewart and Patrick Welch were silent partners. The company's most extensive logging operation was at Myrtle Point, south of Powell River, while it held timber land on Vancouver Island at Menzies Bay, Union Bay and in the Alberni Valley. The Alberni Valley was to become the major area for company operations including the Somass sawmill, the Franklin River logging operation, the Great Central sawmill, and by 1948, an integrated pulp and paper mill which utilized the wastes of the Somass sawmill. J.H. Bloedel was President about 1943 when he became Chairman, and Prentice Bloedel, his son, who had been Secretary and Treasurer since 1930, became President and Treasurer. Prentice Bloedel was instrumental in initiating and negotiating the merger with H.R. MacMillan Export in 1951 to form MacMillan & Bloedel.

In 1919 H.R. MacMillan established H.R. MacMillan Export as a lumber exporting agency in partnership with British agent Montague L. Meyer. In 1920 W.J. VanDusen, who was to remain a close associate of H.R. MacMillan's and with MacMillan's corporation for life, was hired as manager. By 1938, with a staff now numbering about 80, H.R. MacMillan Export operated numerous subsidiary companies. Transition to a public company in 1945 was followed up by a reorganization which changed MacMillan's title to chairman, W.J. VanDusen's to vice chairman, and B.M. Hoffmeister's to president. Amalgamation with Bloedel, Stewart & Welch in 1951 resulted in significant gains in timber land.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS, 1923-1950

Associate Board of Directors - Publications, Library and Archives Committee, 1923-1950

The Associate Board of Directors was also referred to as the Junior Board of Directors. Initially the Publications, Library and Archives Committee consisted of D.K. Shaw, C.G. ADDENDUM

LAW AND CORPORATE AFFAIRS, 1863-1990 Corporate Communications - Corporate Archives, 1863-1987

MacMillan Bloedel operations photographs. - 1931-1987 ; predominant 1965-1980. - ca. 3,800 photoprints : b&w and col. ; 20.5 x 25 cm or smaller. - ca. 800 photonegatives : b&w ; 10 x 12 cm or smaller. - ca. 40 slides : b&w and col. ; 35 mm.

Series consists of photographs, photonegatives, and slides produced by various photographers for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. and its antecedents. The images were created for use in publications, reports, advertisements, and research. Various activities and subjects are represented in the series and form the basis for the arrangement of the images into 16 subseries. The subseries relate to administrative operations, including personnel operations, shipping and transportation, ventures and investments, and marketing. Other functions documented include logging, pulp and paper production, packaging, environmental control, research, and wildlife management.

Title based on content and medium of the series.

Images were removed from their original albums and placed in acid-free envelopes, 1995-1996.

Accompanied by identification key in the form of index cards.

The majority of the images bear identification numbers, which run sequentially.

Accession no.: 95-002

Original sequence of the images has been maintained.

Item list does not exist. Finding aid consists of photo index describing subseries, located in Appendix A of the hardcopy inventory. Finding aid also consists of index cards which accompanied the accession, located in photograph boxes 91 to 93.

PHOTO INDEX

SUMMARY

General theme of the photo filing system is to file photographs by activity rather than by division except for aerials, exteriors, interiors (including construction) of plant buildings, offices, etc.

In the cases where the number of photos of this type for one division is large, the division has a section of its own, i.e. PULP & PAPER 2 - Alberni - aerials, exteriors, interiors. Where the number of photos is small, the divisions of a category are combined into one section, i.e. PACKAGING 1 - packaging divisions - aerials, exteriors, interiors.

The six-digit numbers indicate photo prints (B&W and color), negatives and photo transparencies which are filed in plastic sleeves in three-ring binders in the photo library.

The letter-number combination indicates 35mm slides and 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ transparencies which are filed in the Multiplex frames in the photo library. Duplicate 35mm slides are filed in three-ring binders.

All slides and photos are indexed and cross referenced in numerical order by category.
